NEW HOTEL CO. DESIRES LOCAL BIDS

Here's an earful!

It is the desire of the Glendale Hotel company to have the local contractors and material men participate in the erection of the new hotel, corner Glendale avenue and Broadway. You are, therefore, invited to confer with, and submit bids to Messrs. Lockridge and Barton, architects, second floor, 748 South Hill street, Los Angeles, on Monday, October 2, 1922, or any date thereafter.

Neighbors of Glendale, do you know what that means? Does it look as though the big hotel, which was introduced by the Glendale Advancement association, and which was put over by this organization, assisted by others interested in Glendale, will soon be a reality?

The builders of this hotel are anxious to award as many contracts as possible on the hotel to the Glendale contractors and hotel men. Glendale contractors and workmen first, they say. Everything else being equal local firms will be given the contract. This applies also to workmen, both skilled and unskilled. Glendale workmen will be given the preference. Every dollar that can be kept in Glendale will remain here. This hotel is a Glendale proposition.

Everything in connection with the hotel is coming along nicely. The exact date of the beginning of the work cannot be stated at this time, but it is understood, an announcement of the starting date will soon be forthcoming.

The people back of this hotel proposition are not a loud-talking aggregation. They are workers. They know what they want and when they go after it they get it. The Glendale Advancement association is full of workers with a vision. Every member a worker, applies to that organization. They do things!

HOMES BUILDING NOW ON FAIRVIEW

Hamlin & Hepburn, subdividers have had in mind from the beginning of Fairview, state that there are things in that of service. Service in already eight houses built or under construction. People who are construction on their ninth unit, newcomers or who have heretofore which was put on the market only paid rent to the landlord to have a month ago. Each one of these a home of their own. It stands to homes means a new family in Glendale. Hamlin & Hepburn estimate that the population of the entire Fairview tract is upwards of 500 people, living in over a hundred homes, all of which have been constructed within the last year.

The idea which the subdividers reason that there is a very much larger proportion of this class of people than there are who can buy or build $5000 to $10,000 homes, just as there is a much larger proportion of people who can buy Ford automobiles than there are who can buy Cadillacs or Packards.

The subdividers of this tract have consistently offered lots at low prices and most reasonable terms, in fact at lower prices and better terms than anything else in Glendale. The remarkable response to this appeal is evidenced by the wonderful success of this subdivision, adding a very considerable population to the city of Glendale and converting land which a year ago was in barley fields and other crops into a prosperous community of contented home owners.

A thermos pitcher and tray, whose colors blend with one's bedroom, is attractive enough for any bedside table.

VERDUGO WASH DANGER WILL BE WATCHED

City Council Decides to Control Situation in That District

That the storm water hazard of the Verdugo wash is being increased by the removal of sand from a certain portion of that feature, is the assertion made last night through a communication to the city council by S. H. Owen, a property owner in the region of Geneva street. The communication, which is self-explanatory, is as follows:

"Your attention is respectfully called to the serious condition of Verdugo wash at a point running 75 feet east of Geneva street, and from there west to almost the east line of Howard street.

"For the past two months men and teams have been hauling away gravel and sand, and taking it all from the southerly line (lower bank) of the wash. The point mentioned above is almost identically the same spot the water broke through several years ago, doing considerable damage. At two places the wire protecting screen is entirely exposed, and the wood piles have been undermined.

"The wash at this point is about 60 feet wide, but instead of using good judgment and digging the sand from the center, or even near the upper bank, where the water does not run with such force, all teams continually dig deeper at the lower side.

"Immediate action should be taken in the matter, the damage repaired, and the men stopped in their operation at that particular point."

City Manager Reeves reported that he thought the part of the wash in question belonged to the Thom estate and was not under the jurisdiction of the city. However, as a question existed, the city attorney was instructed to learn definitely if the part of the wash in question is in the city.

It was the opinion of several of the councilmen that all of the wash within the city of Glendale should be under the control of the council, so that nothing could be done on the property now privately owned that would unnecessarily endanger the lives and property of the people of Glendale. In order that such a condition might be brought about, the city attorney was instructed to start condemnation proceedings against the privately owned sections of the wash that happened to lie within the city of Glendale.

CHRISTIAN CIRCLE STARTS BIG YEAR

The Christian Circle club is starting out for a big year, according to the attendance at last night's meeting, held in the social hall of Central Christian church. This was the first fall meeting, and there were 84 girls present. This is a splendid number for the first meeting and plans are being made for a successful year.

A delicious supper was served at 5:45 with the presidents of all the Ladies' Aid societies in Glendale and the different pastors' representatives as guests. Following the dinner, Miss Elizabeth Morten and Mrs. Fannie Marple Betts rendered several beautiful vocal selections. Miss Soper then conducted the Bible study at the close of which there was an executive board meeting, in which plans were formulated for the coming year's work.

Last year the club started out with a membership of 60, but they reached as high as 104 at one meeting. Their average, however, was close to 90. It is expected that the club will see a decided increase as these meetings become better known. They are open to all high school and business girls of Glendale.

SENATOR EDGE, 49, TO WED GIRL OF 21

The engagement is announced of U. S. Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey to Miss Camilla Loyal Ashe Sewall, daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Sewall of Bath, Me. Senator Edge is 49 and his fiancée is only 21. Edge is a widower, with a 7-year-old son. His home is in Atlantic City.

For a long time Paddy Nolan had been anxious to possess a watch, and at last, in one of his rare moments of prosperity, he bought one from a local jeweler—a massive gun-metal timepiece, which the vendor guaranteed, subject to the usual conditions, to keep in order for a year.

Long before the year had expired Paddy returned to the shop. With him he took his cherished purchase, which was looking very tired and sorry for itself.

The jeweler examined the watch, and then shrugged his shoulders ominously.

"But you must have had an accident with it," he said.

"A small one, sure enough, sir. To tell the truth, about two months ago I was feeding the pig and the "Sure," replied Paddy, "I brought it back as soon as I could. We only killed the pig yesterday."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President
American Society for Thrift.

WHILE economic conditions are steadily improving in this country world-wide conditions generally have not materially improved during the four years that have elapsed since the war. America is today the most powerful nation in the world and this exalted position carries with it all the responsibilities of leadership. Perhaps in no better way could this country fulfill these duties than through financial channels. It is suggested that the United States stand ready to make loans to other nations provided these loans are safeguarded as to interest and principal, and that the proceeds are used for purely constructive purposes.

Before any such foreign loans could be negotiated, however, it would be necessary for all foreign nations to reduce their army and naval forces to a peace footing, such as we have in the United States at the present time. Disarmament of this nature would lighten the economic burdens of the civilized world and this saving could be used in paying the indebtedness to this country. Loans of the nature suggested would prove of tremendous impetus to thrift practices throughout the world. People in this country would save money and lend it to the government, while those of foreign nations would be led to practice thrift in order that the loans might be repaid. New wealth thus would be created, industry would be revived and much of the unrest which now exists would disappear. No matter what may be attempted in bringing about world-wide stabilization a plan will be successful unless it embraces primarily the practices of thrift by the people of the world.

Roy L. Kent Co. Ties Up
Valuable Land for Industrial Purposes

The Roy L. Kent company has just secured a long-time lease on 18 acres of valuable land on San Fernando boulevard at the foot of Colorado street, and proposes to convert it at once into an industrial property, according to a communication received from Mr. Kent by the Glendale city council last night. In this letter, Mr. Kent asks that the city give a right-of-way to the Southern Pacific company 47 feet wide through the property owned in that section by the city, and also donate a strip 40 feet wide across the front of the city's property for road purposes. The council instructed City Manager Reeves to investigate this proposition and report at the next meeting.

The communication from Mr. Kent to the council is as follows: "The writer has taken a 98-year lease on approximately 18 acres of industrial property on San Fernando boulevard at the foot of Colorado street, and intends to develop this property as an industrial district.

"The owner of this property has already agreed to deed to the city of Los Angeles a strip of ground 80 feet wide for the extension of Colorado street through this property.

"The writer is about to conclude negotiations with the Southern Pacific railway company for the installation of a drill track through this industrial district. Our 18 acres is bounded on the northeast by a strip of ground 90 feet wide owned by the city of Glendale, and it is proposed to run this drill track across this 90-foot strip to our property, and the Southern Pacific company will require a right-of-way 47 feet wide across your property for railroad purposes, and also an easement 40 feet wide across the front of this property for a road-way.

"We hereby request your honorable body to grant these easements or rights-of-way as will be required by the Southern Pacific company for these purposes."

LEGION SHOW AT NEW

ORLEANS IS READY

Preliminary Arrangements
Have Been Completed for Oct. 16-29

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 29.—All preliminary arrangements have been completed for the American Legion convention to be held here October 16-29.

It is expected to bring approximately 150,000 visitors to this city. The only unsolved problem facing this city is the task of accommodating the vast throng of visitors.

The Legionnaires expect three thousand official delegations and alternates and thousands will attend as visitors.

Railroads have made special rates. This special rate applies to Legion members, auxiliary members, and their families. Arrangements have been made to park sleeping cars here in sufficient number to take care of the visitors and delegates who are unable to secure rooming reservations. The hotels have announced special rates for legion visitors.

Among the tasks confronting the convention will be the framing of a program for the ensuing year which will probably include measures for the relief of disabled veterans and election of national officers and appointment of permanent committees for the ensuing year.

Many famous military organizations of old and recent wars in which the United States has been involved will have representatives at the convention.

An elaborate program has been arranged. It will include a number of athletic features and an attempt will be made to reproduce the life of the doughboy on land, sea and in the air. The first American Legion National Olympic meet will be held during the convention. Legion athletes from every state in the Union will compete for national championship honors in track and field events, aquatic sports, amateur boxing, wrestling, golf and tennis. There will also be a national marksmanship contest and a tournament of professional boxers.

The Legionnaires have arranged a bout between "Happy" Littleton, New Orleans, light-heavyweight boxer, and Fay Kaiser, as one of the headlines on the boxing program.

The United States navy department has announced the assignment of the U. S. Cruiser Birmingham and four destroyers to New Orleans during its sessions here. Twelve naval hydroplanes will fly from the base at Pensacola and will give daily exhibition flights. On one of the convention night's mimic bombing raid will be staged over the business district. Legion national officers are making arrangements for ships to come from England, France, Italy and a number of South American countries to participate in the naval feature along with the American ships.

A reproduction of some of New Orleans' famous carnival features will be on the legionnaires' program for the second night of the convention. There will be three carnival balls, with kings, queens and the customary ceremonies similar to the city's famous Mardi Gras performances. The downtown streets will be illuminated by 28,000 electric bulbs and will be decorated with flags of allied powers. Street dances will be held for the overflow crowds.

The legion visitors will have first hand contact with the Mississippi famous levee. Convention sessions will be held on a public pier. A large covered pier, nearly one thousand feet long and four hundred feet wide astride the levee. The arrangements committee will be able to seat 14,000 delegates and visitors. The stage will seat fifty persons. Elaborate arrangements have been made to take care of the press which is expected to be nationally represented.

The convention parade will be held on the third day. Fifty thousand legionnaires will march by state groups in the order of membership increase during the last twelve months. More than one hundred bands are expected to accompany the marchers as a result of a band contest which will be judged during the parade. Prizes of $1750 will be awarded to the finest legion band and $350 will go to the best drum corps.

Among the leaders who have been invited to attend the convention are: General Pershing, Lloyd George, former Premier Clemenceau and Queen Marie of Rumania. Word has been received that General John A. Lejeune, commander of the U. S. marine corps, Sampel Gompers, president of the Federation of Labor, and Kennesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of organized baseball, will be in attendance. L. C. Dyett, president of the Returned Soldiers and Sailors' league of Australia, will travel ten thousand miles to represent his organization.

U. S. HAS LOST ITS ICE EXPORTS

Uncle Sam has succeeded so well in teaching other nations the health value of ice that they are now manufacturing their own ice and have entirely killed the export trade which this country once enjoyed. But Uncle Sam isn't worrying about this, because the ice making machinery he is now selling these countries amounts to about six times as much as the ice he formerly sold them.

For many years the United States exported ice to tropical and semi-tropical countries, but with the improvements in ice-making machinery this trade began to fall off. The climax came recently when the item "ice" disappeared completely from the official export records, as issued by the United States government.

But a glance further down the list of exports shows that the item "refrigerating machinery, including ice-making machinery," was exported to the amount of $3,391,000 in 1921, while the exportation of ice never amounted to more than $500,000 a year.

Truths in Epigram

A Paradise lost is always to him who so wills it a paradise regained.—Ernest Renan.

We think the feelings that are very serious in a man quite comical in a boy.—Dickens.

The history of a man is his character.—Von Goethe.

TURKS ANXIOUS FOR WAR

The Turk's idea of warfare is the opportunity to slay men, women and children. Turkish soldiers are reported as eager to fight. With them massacre is a pastime. They have proved this on many occasions. They proved it by butchery of Armenians. In the embers at Smyrna is more recent testimony. They would be glad to be turned loose in Constantinople, with the liberty to kill, burn and ravish. It is plain that they are not in a mood to listen to overtures, to consent to compromise. They have made up their minds what they want. The question is as to whether they can be prevented from taking it and taking it in their own peculiar fashion.

Too soon the allies instead of acting as a unit have yielded to the impulse to cease to respond to the demand for the general welfare. They have divided, each power intent on safeguarding its own interests. The aroused Turk, stirred to fury by the Greeks, presses to the border to find the allies in a measure disorganized. The immediate burden of defense falls on England. The British do not want another war. They have had more than enough war. They would do anything in reason to avert conflict. The effort to do so may fail, being beyond the capacity of the diplomats. The very early future will reveal the truth concerning this vital point.

Meanwhile there is terror in Constantinople. Civilians seek to flee the city, but there are thousands of them, of many nationalities that cannot get away. They will have to remain, and be subject to whatever perils the infuriate Moslems may be able to precipitate.

AN ERA OF BUILDING

The total of building permits in Los Angeles has been astonishing to residents of other sections. It was hard for them to realize that a city that but a few years ago was a pueblo; that after other cities of this coast had reached metropolitan size was still a village, now in the volume of its building, often is exceeded only by New York and Chicago. There is no astonishment here, where conditions are known. The only wonder is that the world so long permitted itself to ignore great opportunities.

There is a most interesting circumstance related to the growth of Los Angeles. This is that surrounding the city are many smaller places, each with its own peculiar charm. These places, in the mind of the easterner, are included in Los Angeles. As a matter of geographical fact they are distinct and separate. Even to name them would be to set down a long list. The interesting point about it is that each of these places is expanding, gaining population and business, inaugurating new commercial enterprises. Consider such cities as Pasadena, South Pasadena and Alhambra as one cluster. Long Beach, Redondo, Venice, Ocean View, Santa Monica, form another cluster. Outside the limits of each of these, as within, there is a steady and rapid growth, tending constantly to develop into a material link between the large city and the whole territorial environment.

In this increase is the certain indication that some day from mountains to sea, there will be a metropolis stupendous in size, and vast in industrial achievement. So extensive is the available area, that crowding will not be necessary. The homes will have ample space to be real homes, and not mere shelters. There will be space forever free from industrial concerns, the ideal dwelling spot for a contented multitude.

THEORY AND FACT

Mr. Bryan, in his war on evolution, is not receiving from ministers the support that probably he thinks he merits. "It is my deliberate judgment," said one preacher last Sunday, "that Bryan is a false prophet in the theory of evolution."

Bryan is a politician. He is not learned in the sciences. There appears no reason for accepting him as a teacher of that concerning which he himself is astoundingly ignorant. Evolution, once a theory tentatively accepted, stands forth as a demonstrated truth. The evidence of its validity is not to be refuted. Bryan seems to think that because one construction of it suggests the descent of men from monkeys, that in this one phase is concentrated all there is of evolution. Of course, as every student knows, this is as far from possible from a correct view. The evolutionist does not necessarily hold to any such doctrine. All he contends is that all created things are the products of evolutionary processes. The proofs cited are complete as to the theory, as a whole. Quibbling over matters of detail cannot weaken them.

Moreover, there is nothing in evolution, as accepted by many spiritually-minded people, that impairs in the slightest degree the instinctive faith in a supreme intelligence. Evolution is itself a wonderful expression of intelligence. It is the manifestation of law. Theologians at first opposed recognition of evolution. They found that it could not be denied recognition, and they have proceeded to adjust themselves to it without any wavering of their essential beliefs.

Bryan is out of tune with science, but this does not attune him to modern religious thought.

THE HERRIN MURDERS

Law-respecting people throughout the country, shocked beyond measure by the slaughter at Herrin, were gratified to know that the authority of the state had been evoked against the assassins. The county seems to have been powerless, because of the belief of residents that murder is a proper instrument in the adjustment of industrial disputes. Local sympathy, so far as it dared express itself, upheld the massacre. However, the malign effort to aid the perpetrators in evasion of all penalty, apparently is still operating.

Of the prisoners, so indignant at being brought to book, a large proportion have been allowed bail, and though the aggregate bond was large, there was no difficulty in procuring it. The men financially capable of going on the bonds, were requested to do so. They acquiesced without sign of hesitation. It is quite possible that they did not dare refuse. They might have feared a ruinous boycott. They might have realized that the community humor that applauded a wanton and horrid slaughter, had not yet died out.

The task of the prosecution will be difficult. It is exceedingly doubtful that a jury could be formed at Herrin that would have the courage to bring in a verdict such as warranted by the facts. It even may be that no such jury could be found in the whole of the terrorized and discredited county. Nevertheless there still is hope that the Herrin murderers shall receive a lesson touching upon the value of human life, and the power of society to protect itself.

You might call a man a rolling stone, but don't insinuate that he isn't on the level.

So This Is New York

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Now that we have had the play "So This Is London!" showing how absurd the so-called American and British types are, and how unfounded are our race prejudices, we ought to have another play showing the peculiar charm Americans have for Britishers.

A correspondent suggests that such a play might be called "So This Is New York!" The fact is, that right along with race prejudice we all have a certain admiration for foreigners.

I am as good an American as anybody, and yet any kind of a foreigner has a peculiar charm for me.

So much so that I spend my Dr. Frank Crane vacation, whenever I can, in a foreign country. There are things about a Frenchman, for instance, that offend me. His point of view and his bringing up are different from mine.

But besides this, the Frenchman has certain excellences to which I can never attain. He has certain good qualities in which I am deficient, and these I admire, and I like to spend time among Frenchmen for the same reason that I always like to associate as far as possible with people who in some respect excel me.

The same thing is true of Germans. They have their faults, but also they have their charm.

And, as far as I am concerned, I have never found any kind of people in the world—that is, any race or people—where the common mass of men and women were not kindly, human and lovable.

I have my moments of race prejudice, just as I have impulses to steal, to lie, and to murder, because I am human, and there is no particular form of human goodness of which I have not the germ; just as the doctors tell me I have in my mouth at all times the germs of thirty or forty deadly diseases. These diseases do not master me, for the simple reason that I have health enough to throw them off.

I class race prejudice among the remnants of the beast which evolution has not yet entirely eliminated from our make-up.

Civilization is very recent, and we are all probably nine-tenths savage. When I hear a man, therefore, saying that he hates a Jew, or hates a Spaniard, or hates a German, or hates a Frenchman, I don't condemn him any more than I would condemn a child for his childishness. I know that in a few hundred years he will get rid of that stuff.

When a man has become completely a human being, he can see the elements of loveliness not only in his own family and neighbors (which also a tomcat or a gutter-snake can do), but he can see these elements in people of another color and another tongue.

If I live, I expect before long to visit Japan and China, and I know right now I am going to love these Orientals. Already they fascinate me.

To return to our mutton, there are a great many country people to whom New York is a veritable Sodom and Gomorrah. It might be a good plan to produce a play showing that, after all, New Yorkers are just as charming as the people who live in Gopher Prairie. And it might be interesting to see a Gopherite here finding out that Gothamites are human, and exclaiming: "So this is New York!"

QUERIES

(Find the error in this article)

Miss M. H. Rosemeier, Cincinnati, O.: "Kindly inform me which is correct, giving the reason: 'I am pleased to inform you that our new line of X & Co's Suits and Coats for fall has arrived'; or, 'I am pleased to inform you that our new line of X & Co's Suits and Coats for fall have arrived.' Answer: The right word is have. Line is a collective noun and may be considered as either singular or plural. Since the suits and coats that make up the 'line' are different, of different styles, and undoubtedly arrived at different times, they should be thought of as separate things and therefore in the plural."

E. W., New York City: "Will you please tell me which is correct, and why: 'This is one of the changes that has been made'; or, 'This is one of the changes that have been made.' Answer: The right word is have. The subject of have is that, which is plural because its antecedent changes is plural."

John Broll, New York City: "Kindly inform me whether or not the following sentence should take a question mark after it: 'Kindly inform me just how many counts I have to my credit.' Answer: No. It is not an interrogative sentence."

G. Nagy, Providence, R. I.: "To settle a dispute kindly advise me of the following information: How many words are there in the English language? How many words does a learned man use as a school teacher, use?" Answer: Shakespeare's vocabulary was 15,500 words. The New Standard Dictionary contains 450,000 words. Many persons with little education, persons that write little and read little, probably get along in life by using only 300 to 400 words. Few persons use more than 3000 to 4000 words."

Yesterday's Error

"What is wrong with the following sentence, please: 'He swum across the stream.' An interrogation point should have followed 'swum.' Do not be careless in the matter of punctuation."

THE LISTENING POST

There are two major bills that the people of this country pay. The bill for the education of youths. And the bill for the lack of it. These two comprise the greater part of the tax burden in the ordinary affairs of life.

Of course there are bills for roads and public buildings and various improvements and luxuries, but the two items above include the bulk of the burden of taxation.

And the more we pay for the education of the youth and the more we understand what education really is, the less we pay for the lack of education.

The sums we pay for education are expended in teaching staffs, school buildings, colleges, universities, laboratories and the like.

And the result is in sturdier youth. Youth that is ambitious, energetic, wholesome, law-abiding, productive.

The sum we pay for the lack of education is expended in police departments, criminal courts, armies, navies, prisons, asylums for the insane, houses of correction, alms houses and the like.

Rather dreary things to pay money for.

Yet the less of real education we have, the greater the bill for prison, courts and officials to make arrests and preserve the peace. So it is a pretty good thing to stand off and look at the two major divisions of the bills we pay.

And see whether some of the expenditure for the lack of education cannot be avoided.

The boy who gets a real education is not an offender against the laws.

He does not need the espionage of the police.

He is not haled off to court and tried for violation of the law.

He is not a burglar, a forger, a thief, a stick-up man. He adds something to the wealth of the world, for he is a worker.

And whatever sums may have been expended for his education he repays a hundred fold in productive activity as a citizen.

He is an investment.

And he pays good returns on the investment.

Society which educates him receives its money back with interest.

But the uneducated youngster, who grows up to earn money by his wits and without regard for society, is a liability.

A continuing expense.

He repays nothing.

He makes more expense as he progresses in life.

So every time you help a boy to a real education you are adding to the wealth of the world.

You are reducing the bill for crime.

For laziness and shiftlessness and helplessness and uselessness.

For it is the business of real education to decrease crime by making young people self-respecting, self-supporting and law-abiding.

When you help pay the bill for right education you are making a profitable investment.

When you help pay the bills for courts and officers and juries and prisons and asylums you are paying for dead horse.

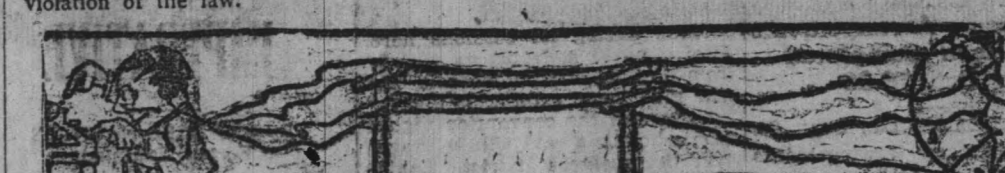

So as an economic matter you are highly interested in the right education of youth.

For you are paying two big charges:

One for education, which is your investment.

One for the lack of education, which is a continuing liability and loss.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Song—By Richard Le Gallienne

She's somewhere in the sunlight strong,
Her tears are in the falling rain,
She calls me in the wind's soft song,
And with the flowers she comes again.

For bird is but her messenger,
The moon is but her silver car;
Yea, sun and moon are sent by her,
And every wistful waiting star.

California's Mineral Industries in 1921

Compilation of the final returns from the mineral producers of California for 1921 has now been completed by the statistical division of the State Mining Bureau. The total value for the year amounted to $265,157,472, an increase of $26,057,085 over the year 1920 total of $242,099,667. There were 51 different mineral substances, exclusive of a segregation of the various stones grouped under gems, and all of the 58 counties of the state contributed to the list.

The salient features of 1921 compared with the preceding year, are: The continued increase in gold, silver, cement, crushed rock and natural gas; decreases in copper, quicksilver, lead, the salient group, and the salient group. The net result was an increase in the grand total for all groups, of slightly over $26,000,000 value, as given above. Petroleum accounted for an increase of $24,743,288 due both to a larger quantity and a higher price per barrel. With the exception of gold and silver, all other items in the metals group showed decreases. On the "structural" materials group, cement showed an increase of nearly 700,000 barrels in quantity and of $3,109,175 in value; miscellaneous stone (comprising crushed rock, sand and gravel), an increase in aggregate tonnage and an increase of $1,031,083 in value; granite, an increase of $230,169 in value; magnesite, a decrease of 50 per cent in value (to $511,102), with a 43 per cent decrease in quantity.

Nearly all of the items in the "industrial" materials group registered decreases, the heaviest loss being diatomaceous earth. With one exception, all of the products in the saline group decreased, especially borax, potash and soda. The exception was calcium chloride, a new item not previously reported to the State Mining Bureau as on the production list for California.

From data furnished by the Industrial Accident Commission, it is estimated that there were employed in the mines, dredges, quarries, cement and brick plants, approximately 33,000 men during 1921, and approximately 25,000 men in the oil fields exclusive of refineries, making a total of approximately 33,000 men employed in the mineral industries in California last year. The production for the year of $265,157,472 worth of minerals, therefore, represents, in round numbers, an average output of $7000 for every man employed, or an average of $3300 per man in the oil fields and $5000 per man in the other branches.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

ARRANGING THE LEGAL PROFESSION

[Pittsburgh Gazette Times]

"Credit men have found that a large proportion of indecent bankruptcies and unfair compositions, or compromises, are suggested, recommended or urged by members of the bar." The charge is made by J. H. Tregoe, executive head of the National Association of Credit Men, in a formal communication addressed to the members of the association. "In many of the large cities," he says, "there are bankruptcy rings made up of men sworn to defend law and order and yet literally seeking for the defeat of law and order."

And this sort of thing happens under the nose of the court! This is a severe arraignment of the legal profession. If it were made by a soapbox orator it might be ignored, but coming from the spokesman of the National Association of Credit Men it deserves the serious attention of the bar associations of the country.

The other day we had occasion to refer to the suit filed by a professional dancer against the son of a prominent New York financier to collect a large sum as damages for breach of promise to marry. The plaintiff was quoted as saying that she did not want to institute the damage suit, but that her attorney had insisted that court proceedings should be begun, and that she had consented to the filing of the papers. Without doubt much litigation that clogs the courts would be eliminated if all lawyers scrupulously took when they are admitted to practice. How to exact universal observance is the problem, probably without solution. However, leaders of the profession can throw their influence against the practices complained of more strongly than they have done, and bar associations can display more courage in cleaning house than they have in the past.

Incidentally, a start might be made by giving Mr. Tregoe an opportunity to sustain his charges by bringing specific cases into court.

Scrapping battleships are so particularly needed now that none will be scrapped for the present, if you get the idea.

When a preacher advocates that the "church vote" be thrown this way or that, an impulse arises to ask where he got his authority.

If the indicted Herrin suspects are to be allowed half, the plan of punishing them might as well be regarded right now as frustrated.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Literature is permeated with the sentiment forbidding that unkindness be spoken of the dead. Were these ethics to be followed, history would be a tale but half told, and ill told at that. Silence is the utmost tribute to be accorded justly to the one who, living, merited rebuke. Doubtless the death of Senator Watson of Georgia will be the occasion of florid tributes from his colleagues. Such is one of the rigid requirements of senatorial courtesy. The gentlemen will rise in their places and utter eulogies which in their hearts they will know to be untrue. The late senator, while possessing a certain force, was not a great man in any sense of the word. He was a turbulent and disturbing element without fixity of purpose. He was bitter in his opinions, brutal in his expression of them. Often it is natural to admire the individual who protests. An organ of protest, with an editor who fairly roars, but does not always roar fairly, may be an excellent thing in a community. To be effective it must have the leaven of some principle in itself worthy of respect.

HENRY JAMES

In private life Mr. Watson conducted a publication so virulent that the propriety of excluding it from the mails was generally recognized. There was nothing pacific about him. Opposed to the war into which honor had called the country, he was ever in fighting mood, poised for attack, stirring up hate. In the senate he denounced with fiery invective any man or measure not pleasing to him. Yet the man might be upright and the measure admirable. He brought outrageous charges relating to the conduct of American officers in Europe, for which a shred of proof could be adduced, and he vilified, face to face, the officers who appeared before the committee to defend themselves against wanton slanders.

Doubtless Mr. Watson had a side that was known to his friends alone. So far as the public was permitted a knowledge of his activities, it is idle to pretend that they were worthy of a high valuation.

The present does not seem an appropriate time for the scrapping of battleships. Apparently the hope that the great powers had arrived at the point at which it would be safe to drop some of the ostentatious showing of military strength, has been delayed somewhat. This does not have any bearing on the four-power treaty as assuring peace on the Pacific.

News columns report charges of graft in relation to war aircraft. Perhaps they are justified and perhaps not. The public is not likely to be aroused to interest over the matter. The public is well aware that many millions were spent by it, for which it never had a shadow of return. Some of these millions are believed to have been directed to providing aircraft, that never was in any part provided. The individuals who got the money are reticent. They ought to give it back voluntarily, and know the joy of clear conscience. In case of their refusal, officials invested with the proper authority, ought to take the booty away from the brigands. Then the officials could have their chance at possessing clear consciences. But nothing of this sort happens, and the former faith that it would happen, has withered and died. So what's the use of the citizen who is neither robber nor hired sleuth, permitting himself to get worked up about it?

One of the men from the Jackson mine has been observing the traffic of city streets. He is one of the brave, chaps who risked life day after day in the effort to rescue the imprisoned men. Yet he says he wants to get back to the mine, because it is safer there. This may seem odd, but a little reflection will prove that the visitor is not taking an eccentric view. The sailor ashore feels the impulse of caution to hurry back to his wave-tossed craft. The tragedy at the mine was impressive because of the number of victims claimed on the instant. The tragedy of the streets is a prolonged serial.

It is interesting to observe that there still are people in Los Angeles anxious to have the public library placed in Pershing square. There is ample room for the building on Normal hill. It would adorn the hill, and its presence would ruin the square. Rather than sacrifice the only green space available, the small but indispensable breathing spot in a region rapidly yielding to business congestion, it would be better far to have no library building, but continue in rented quarters.

When, in a municipal expanse generally level, there arises a hill, breaking the monotony of aspect, people do not ask how the eminence may be made picturesque, adding to local beauty. They do not seek to adorn it with verdure and trees and graceful approaches and winding drives, and blooming terraces. Nothing like that. On the contrary they seek a method of eliminating the hill, adding to the level space, and leaving what might have been a place of wondrous beauty, devoid of scenic charm as a pan of skim milk.

When a city has a hill, it has not an incubus, but an asset. The hill should be cherished, embellished, but not destroyed. Let the roads lead around it, or let them get through by tunnel. Business naturally wants all there is, and so the artistic senses are continually appalled by the vandalism of the spirit of commerce. Effacing a hill to make room for junkshops and garages, is akin to felling a majestic and historical tree to be saved into lath. Remove a hill because a truck load of pig iron loses thirty seconds in going around it! Or because a speeder might skid on the curves. Permit him to skid! The hill is of importance and the speeder is not. The mistake in relation to Normal hill is in cutting it down at all. The library should crown it, not be set down in a commonplace level where the hill rises now.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Not long ago I read a newspaper paragraph about a public meeting in New York city, in which a well known and highly respected man made this statement:

"Not one hundred people in the United States hate the government."

Whereupon, according to the newspaper story, "the audience booed and hissed."

That audience was largely of foreign birth, no doubt, and entirely unacquainted with the American government and American opportunities. Most of them had had bitter personal experiences to null over, for which the American government was no more to blame than the French government would be if an American was cold-shouldered by his neighbors in France. But the government is a tangible entity to hate. Hence the boos and hisses.

"What about the native-born Americans in the audience?" I asked a friend who had been present.

"Not one peeped," said he.

It was not hate on their part, or cowardice, but a combination of diffidence and an indisposition to break out of a rut. They lacked initiative. Which recalls what happened in a town that might be Marysville. Barrel-head agitators were holding half-dark meetings in the public square every night, saying the most reasonable and untrue things about this republic and its government. No one said a word in rebuttal. The discontented sore-heads cheered and clapped hands, until one night a man who might be John Smith stepped up.

"Tonight," said he, "any criticism of this country or this government must be couched in decent and courteous terms. No mere calling of names goes from now on. If you do not like us, tell us why, but stop your abuse."

"This is an infringement of the policy of free speech upon which this republic was founded," yelled the orator who had been damning the republic. "I call upon every lover of freedom—"

There were half a dozen heavy fights on as many nights and then the new rule was accepted; and here's the funny part of it. Marysville was full of men, native and foreign, who love this country. But they had been voiceless, and because they heard no one speak up they were being warped from their allegiance. Today there is no more patriotic town than Marysville.

AUTUMN COLORS SHOWN IN FALL GOWNS

First Tint of Frost Will Show Hues in Wardrobe

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—When the first tint of frost has tinged the maple leaves into lovely browns, ambers and dull reds, we will see a millay of fashion applying these same tones to her autumn wardrobe.

Designers seem to have united on this autumnal color scheme, even going so far as to use these colors in their lighter tones for undergarments.

For daytime wear, brown in cinnamon shades and in seal shades is considered the leading color note. Perhaps no other color combines so successfully with fur as does brown, and as everything is lavishly fur-trimmed this season, this alone should make that color popular.

Dull red, burnt orange, and Peacock colorings are used in all sorts of combinations for the afternoon gowns. Paisley, which combines nearly all of the autumn colorings, is again considered extremely smart in spite of its previous popularity. Whole suits are made of it combined with seal fur. When one wishes to combine another color with Paisley there is a beautiful deep red that does admirably. It is the same red that formed the centers of many of the old Paisley shawls.

Three-piece suits for early autumn wear are shown by many of the costumers who cater to the youthful effects. Most of these have velvet dresses with little short coats of fur or velvet trimmed in imitation fur. A suit of this sort designed for the youthful figure has a simple little dress of Egyptian red velvet with round neck and short sleeves and side panels extending from the waist line. With this is worn a jacket of the same material, cut very short and gathered into a seal belt that fastens about the hips. The sleeves are made extremely wide forming a cape effect and have narrow bands of seal running lengthwise from shoulder to wrist. A standing collar of seal fits snugly about the neck.

Evening Gowns for Fall
Renee, whose evening gowns are always delightful, is sponsoring amber for evening wear and the woman who has a glint of bronze in her hair will find it unusually becoming. One of the prettiest of the Renee gowns is made of light amber chiffon velvet in the straight line idea, draped low on the hips to give a suggestion of waist line. It is of the rounded neck, sleeveless variety and is entirely unadorned, relying upon material and simplicity of drape for its distinction. The wrap accompanying it is of a darker shade of amber, banded from neck to hem with narrow stripes of beaver which are placed about two inches apart. Another gown utilizing the amber tones is made of chiffon beaded in all-over design in tiny gold beads.

There is little change in the silhouette for evening gowns. Necklines are varied somewhat from the bateau shape by using straps over the shoulders, but these straps are much shorter than the straps of past seasons and really give the same effect as the bateau. For formal wear, low V necks and the extreme decollete is used. Numerous chains of beads falling from a neckline in a cascade cover the shoulders of the backless gowns are seen on some of the imports.

Waistlines continue long, with some of them extending below the hips. The raised waist which some of the Parisian designers insist upon is seen very little in the New York shops. There is an occasional evening frock designed for the flapper with the tight, raised bodice and the wide flaring skirt, but it is doubtful whether this style will be prominent.

Velvets are accorded the best materials for the formal evening gown and as a rule they are entirely untrimmed. In spite of the predictions for the popularity of the tinsel and metallic cloth effects, the well dressed woman will not go in very strongly for fabrics of this sort. The fastidious woman always uses brilliant effects sparingly.

Large pores and blackheads are so often the result. For this condition, Marinello's cleansing and astringent facials and methods of 18 years. Effective, as in every beauty service. Stimulating and refining the complexion.

Easy Lessons in Auction Bridge

Copyright 1922 by Hoyle, Jr.

Article No. 1

Introduction

The purpose of this particular series of articles is to give a short summary of the game of Auction Bridge, so that even a beginner can acquire sufficient knowledge of the game, both of bidding and play, to enable him to play a creditable game. The best way to acquire the knowledge of the rules necessary for the beginner is to study the first thirty-one rules of the Laws of Auction of the Whist Club of New York, which are to be found in any standard book on Auction. In case such a book is not available, read carefully this

Summary of the Laws of Auction

Partners and Deal—Auction Bridge, as played by four people, requires two packs of cards with different backs. Jokers are not used. One pack is shuffled and spread face down on table, so that players may draw for partners. The players drawing the two lowest cards play against holders of the two highest. Ace is low in cutting, and, in case of duplicate draws, Spades have preference over Hearts, then Diamonds and Clubs. Holder of lowest card chooses his seat at table, and one pack of cards. Holder of third lowest takes his choice of opponents' seats. Second hand (player at dealer's left) shuffles dealer's cards, which are cut by person at dealer's right. Dealer's partner shuffles the "still" deck and places it at his right, ready for second hand to use for next deal. Thereafter, this shuffling of the still deck always is done by partner of current dealer, while deal is going on.

Thirteen cards are dealt, one at a time, to each player, starting with player at dealer's left. Players can not look at their cards until deal is complete. If a misdeal, by reason of a card being faced or otherwise exposed or an incorrect number being given to any player, same dealer deals again. Deal passes to left.

Bidding—Any one of the four suits may be declared trump, or the hand may be played without trump, the so-called "No Trump." Dealer bids first. He may "pass," or bid one or more in Clubs, Diamonds, Hearts, Spades, or No Trump, which rank in the order named. A bid of one indicates that bidder, to fulfill his contract, must take one odd trick. An odd trick is one trick more than six. A bidder has to take six tricks, or his "book," before he can start to score. Therefore seven, or seven odd tricks, is highest possible bid.

Each of the other players, starting with player at dealer's left, may pass, double, or overbid the dealer. To overbid, it is necessary to bid the same number of tricks in a suit which ranks higher, or a larger number of tricks in a suit which ranks lower than that named by dealer. The bidding goes round to the left until three players in succession pass, except that, if it be the first round, and the first three players pass, the fourth is given an opportunity to bid. Should all four players pass on the first round, the cards are dealt by the next dealer, with his own pack.

In bidding, the number of tricks outranks the value of the tricks. For instance, three Clubs, with a total trick value of 18, outranks two No Trump, worth 20 points.

Doubling—Any player may double an opponent's bid, and bidder or partner may redouble or bid something else outranking the doubled bid. By doubling, the opponent indicates that he can "set" the bidder; by redoubling, bidder asserts his confidence in his own make.

Doubling increases the value of the tricks (not the honors) in scoring but not in bidding (see Scoring). Example: two Spades overbids two Hearts doubled and redoubled, although in scoring two Spades counts only 18 trick points, whereas two Hearts redoubled counts 64.

A higher bid by any player cancels any previous double or redouble.

The Play—The declarer is the player who first named the winning suit, regardless of any bids or suits named between his first calling the suit and its final bid by himself or his partner. His partner is "dummy." Player at left of declarer leads any card; then dummy lays down his cards face up, and sorted into suits. Dummy thereafter must not touch his cards. Their play is left entirely to declarer. Each player must follow suit, led if he can; otherwise trump or discard as he likes. Cards rank from Ace down to Deuce, and trumps always win. When there is a trump, highest card or highest trump, if trumps be played on trick, wins trick; in No Trump, highest card of suit led wins. Winner leads for next trick. Declarer leads from dummy hand when tricks are taken by card from that hand. First six tricks taken by declarer are his "book." All over the book count toward game. If declarer has bid three, he must win three tricks over his book, or nine tricks.

Scoring—Only the declarer's side can score towards game, and the game score is the only score that goes below the horizontal line on the score card.

Below the Line Declarer Scores for each trick over his book.

Above the Line Declarer's or Opponent's Score for "Honors" as held by them when cards are dealt. The honors are the A, K, Q, J, and Ten of a trump suit; or the four Aces when there is no trump.

Table of Count	Clubs	Diamonds	Hearts	Spades	No Trump
Each trick over 6	6	7	8	9	10
1 honor (simple)	12	14	16	18	20
4 honors	24	28	32	36	40
5 honors	30	35	40	45	50
4 in one hand	48	56	64	72	80
4 in one hand 5th	54	63	72	81	90
5 in one hand	60	70	80	90	100

Doubling doubles these trick (not honor) values; redoubling multiplies them by four. Thirty trick points constitute a game, but all over thirty are scored. Excess points on one game can not be counted on next. Partners winning two games complete a rubber. For winning 12 tricks, or Little Slam, there is a bonus of 50 honor points; for Grand Slam, or 13 tricks, 100 points. Declarer also gets a bonus of 50 honor points if he makes a doubled contract, plus a bonus of 50 points for each trick taken above contract. Declarer redoubles, these bonuses are 100.

When opponents "set" the declarer the opponents score 50 honor points for each trick by which declarer falls short of his contract; 100 for each trick if bid has been doubled; 200 if redoubled.

If declarer fulfills his contract, he scores for every trick he takes in excess of his bid; if he does not make amount bid, he can score only his honors as held. When contract is defeated, nothing is scored below the line.

Penalty for a revoke by declarer is 50 honor points, which opponents score above the line. When opponents revoke declarer may take 50 honor points or 2 of opponents' tricks for first revoke; each additional revoke by opponents entitles declarer to 50 honor points. Declarer can use tricks taken on a revoke to make good his contract, but cannot use them to obtain additional bonus in his honor score by reason of the bid having been doubled or redoubled; nor can he use them to count Slam or Little Slam not otherwise obtained. A revoking side can score only honors as held.

Winners of two games in trick points receive 250 points bonus in honors.

Winning Rubber—At the end of a rubber, the complete score of each side, including the 250 won by one set of partners for winning two games, is totaled, and the side with the greatest complete total of points wins the rubber.

L. A. FUR WORK COMES TO MILLS

S. J. Mills, who recently opened a fur store at 133 South Brand, is demonstrating that he can build up a good business in his line in Glendale. Since opening he has been flooded with work, and has had several big jobs from Los Angeles people, among them being the working over of a $1,000 Alaska seal coat, and other similar jobs. His trade follows him. He was connected with Colburn's in the city and the people for whom he did work are glad to entrust him with their expensive garments, knowing they will be handled right.

WHAT YOU HAVE BEEN WAITING ONE YEAR FOR—THE FLAMING ANSWER TO "THE SHEIK"

DON'T MISS IT YOU'LL BE SORRY IF YOU DO!

MILLION DOLLARS SPENT ON ICING REFRIGERATION

According to figures published in a trade report of the National City bank of New York, ice is rapidly becoming a daily necessity instead of a summer-time luxury in the average American home, and the American people are spending a million dollars a day to keep their ice boxes full.

And food economists and health experts figure that this million dollars' worth of ice saves several million dollars' worth of food each day, in addition to protecting the health of countless children and adding to the comfort of their families.

Statisticians for the big New York bank estimate that four-fifths of the ice used today is artificially manufactured, the remaining fifth being natural ice taken from lakes and rivers. Each year shows a big decrease in the amount of natural ice used, this being attributed to the convenience and ease of handling of manufactured ice.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE SECRET SIN

He's awful small and is not much for looks. But my! he's awful, awful smart in books. And never whispers in his seat and so He goes right on when we don't pass, you know. And when examination comes, he makes A perfect in his studies and he takes His books home nights and does the chores and then

He studies all his lessons until ten Or twelve o'clock and when vacation comes He's sad because there's no such thing as sums.

Nobody knows what makes him study so. But Henry Bemis says it looks as though Some secret crime was eating out his heart And that is why he always keeps apart From all of us and goes to school alone.

As though he hopes perhaps he can atone For what he's done. And Henry said he heard In olden times how men don't speak a word But beat their breasts and wear coarse clothes to show Their true repentance for their deeds, you know.

And Henry thinks he may have drowned cats. Or tied a can to some good dog and that's The reason why he studies hard to keep Remorse away until he goes to sleep. And Henry said you're often apt to find Some terrible deeds of wickedness behind Great righteousness. And in the dead of night You look up in his room and see a light Where he's at work and Oh, you're awful glad You never did a deed that's very bad.

Many Changes in Football Rules

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (United Press).—Contrary to general opinion, there are more than forty changes in the new football code, according to Ernest C. Quigley, well known National League umpire and prominent football referee.

Quigley in collaboration with Charles B. Moran, fellow National League umpire and coach of the famous Centre College eleven, have written a series of articles on football that is one of the best ever done. One feature of the series is an explanation of the changes in the rules that is so well done it was used at the recent meeting of football coaches and referees held in New York to interpret the new changes.

One of the most important changes, of course, is the new method of scoring a point after a touchdown. The option of trying a kick, a run or a forward pass from formation will result in the expenditure of more work for one point than has ever been done before.

It also will bring about the possibility of losing a very valuable player by injury for one measly point.

Some of the eastern officials considered that the changes made in the rules for a shift would make impossible for Princeton to use the noted system of end play, which Coach Roper made such a success of. Quigley, however, maintains that instead of hampering that system of end play that the new rule opens more and larger fields for its use.

Quigley is well known around the baseball loop but it is not generally known that he is a law graduate and that for fourteen years he was the instructor in English, Latin and history at St. Mary's College in Kansas. He also is one of the foremost authorities in the country on rules as in addition to umpiring in professional baseball and officiating in football, he is one of the officials annually at A. A. U. national basketball championships.

Spike Webb, the boxing instructor at the U. S. Naval Academy, claims to have invented a new punch which he has styled the "navy double punch." It is a quick delivery of a right to the jaw and a left to the body. "To work the combination it is necessary to draw the opponent in by a series of feints and when this happens, the body is well shifted around to the left side in order to deliver a short, snappy back-hand punch with the right hand. This causes the opponent to raise his guard leaving the body open for a left hook," Spike says.

It is not patented. Anyone wanting to practice on Jack Dempsey is welcome.

George Sisler is generally regarded as the most likely candidate to step into the shoes of Ty Cobb. The "Sluggo" has already started stealing Cobb's records. Recently when he hit safely in forty-one games he took a record away from Ty Cobb that he had held since 1911.

Pancho Villa, the new American flyweight champion, has a fight arranged with Jimmy Wilde, the little Englishman for the world's championship. He hardly will take a chance on losing that good purse by meeting anyone in the meantime. If he wants a good fight, however, he might accept the challenge of Bud Taylor, the new Chicago sensation. Taylor says he will make 112 pounds for Villa and if Pancho can't see it, he'll go after Joe Lynch.

New Mexican Woman in Congress Race

Mrs. A. O. Warren

Mrs. Adelina Otero Warren, member of a prominent Santa Fe (N. M.) family, has won the republican nomination for congress. She is the third woman to win such a nomination from the G. O. P. this year. Active in politics for years, Mrs. Warren was first identified with educational work, serving as state superintendent of education. Later she became identified with the state health board and was one time chairman of the women's division of the republican state committee.

MANY STOLEN CARS RECOVERED

More than 21,000 stolen automobiles, valued at more than $2,500,000 have been recovered by the bureau of investigation of the department of justice since the passage of the Dyer anti-theft automobile law in October, 1919. This was announced by the American Automobile association, which procured the figures from William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation.

THE CAT STILL ALIVE

LONDON.—Gertie Gitana, 95 years old, went to the police station at Hotten, Kent, and told the cop on duty that her parrot had been killed by her cat.

"I want pussy drowned, please," she requested.

The cop's son was given the job, but declined.

So the old lady tried to drown the animal in a bath tub. She slipped up on the carpet, fell head first in the tub, and met death.

The cat made a safe getaway.

The Phenomenal Growth of Glendale is one of the marvels of modern city building, and Glendale's fame as the "Fastest Growing City in America" has been heralded to the ends of the earth. And why? Mainly because Glendale is ideally situated as

"The Home Builders' Paradise"

The elevation, our unsurpassed advantages from every standpoint and the character of business buildings and homes constructed speak in no uncertain terms of the permanent and certain growth of the city.

It has been the aim of the Roy L. Kent Company to encourage the building of the better class of structures, and we are glad to say the numerous buildings constructed by our company verify this statement. We operate on the plan that the "best is the cheapest," and the smallest detail in construction is given the most careful attention by our architects. That Glendale is only beginning to grow is the opinion of the most conservative citizen. Building permits in September will exceed a half million dollars, and this fall will see great activity in building operations. The Roy L. Kent Co., with a reputation back of it for reliability and service, is ready to aid you in building a home or business block.
